

RITE NOW @ ROP

In recognition of Child Abuse Awareness Month, the Lafayette County community came together for a meaningful clean-up event, with the RAMS and interns from LJTC proudly participating in the effort.

The day began with a safety briefing and distribution of protective gear to ensure everyone was prepared. Our student-athletes showed great pride in contributing to the cleanliness and well-being of the community they currently call home, taking an active role in the service event, where they picked up trash at the Maya Angelou State Park.

Following the clean-up, the group visited the community Easter Egg Hunt, where students enjoyed lunch with the Mayor of Lewisville, Dr. Ethan Dunbar. The Mayor is a regular visitor at LJTC and enjoyed speaking with the students about the community event that took place earlier that day. This encounter provided a chance for students to connect with local leadership and celebrate the positive impact of the events of the day. Days like this, require incredible leadership skills, social skills, and a positive attitude, all of which these students displayed wonderfully throughout the day.

To wrap up the day, everyone enjoyed a refreshing treat while reflecting on the experience and the importance of giving back to your community. Student athletes were inspired and planned to seek ways they can get involved with community activities when they return home. The discovery that there are a variety of ways to provide meaningful service, connect with the community, and create action that betters the world around us seemed most impactful to the students.
